The most decided effect was caused to the Atchison, which made a rather aggressive advance, especially the preferred, which was unusually active.

The United States Steel stocks also developed great strength without special news. The details of the August exports showed some very heavy declines in values for iron and steel compared with July but the buyers of the steel claimed to have encouraging advices of progress in the revival in the trade.

There was practically no Manipulation was written all over the day's transactions. There was practically no outside interest. Taking advantage of this, a small clique of professionals assumed control and boosted prices for quick profits. It was impossible for the locker-on to discover a bullish indication to justify the advance. Weather and crop conditions in the winter and spring belts were favorable and receipts here and at Minneapolis were much larger than on the corresponding day last year. There was no damage news and the general inclination of traders was to case their lines over Saturday. Occasional movements to unlocal were checked by professional binding. In the first hour the market see-sawed, with a slight tendency toward lower values. From France came a semiofficial denial that the duty on wheat was to be abrogated. Doll and rather list less cubies were a hearish indication.
